Banking on animations

Westside company Radley Yeldar – also known as RY – is a 'creative consultancy specialising in brand, corporate and sustainability communications'.

RY's recent creations including a series of short animated films for HSBC to try to make the world of banking understandable.

The series tackles terms like Blockchain – the means of shortening transaction times across global supply chains or recording any information of value – and Bitcoin, the first decentralised cryptocurrency that is 15 years old this year.

RY's Westside offices are on the second floor of Nelson House on Quay Place, King Edwards Road – directly opposite the Utility Arena.

Meanwhile, RY's head of film and animation Emily Clements discusses 'Unleashing Creativity with AI' in a 36-minute film that explains how the speed of change saw ChatGPT reach one million users in just five days. You can watch the video here. <https://vimeo.com/88b066987>

Osprey helping firms fly

Osprey Engineering Solutions on Westside is a recruitment company which 'connects and enables talented people'.

The company, based in Gatsby Court at 96 Granville Street, works across various industries from flood power to pneumatics, filtration, flow control, bolting, automation, hydraulics and more.

With a database of more than 10,000 CVs, they say: "We've built a business out of helping to create great teams by finding the perfect person for the job. Our reputation has been built on a proven track record of our success, rather than ambitious claims."

NEC Group jobs on offer at ICC and Utilita Arena

The NEC Group, which includes the ICC and Utilita Arena in Westside, is advertising for staff in a range of roles.

The company stages some 750 events per year and attracts more than seven million visitors annually. Its 850 employees in Westside and across its other venues including Resorts World Arena and the NEC itself helped to support more than 29,000 other jobs in 2020.

Available roles include hospitality and team member (£11 per hour) and casual co-ordinator (£12.25 per hour).

Because of the nature of the work, such roles can require weekend availability etc – so they might help you to run a more flexible family life, too, than the traditional 9-5pm hours might have done in the past.
